I resolve to...

By Myliques Sutton and Amanda Gipson

Every year, when the calendar changes from Dec. 31 to Jan. 1, people celebrate the advancement of time, the start of a new year and an opportunity to close the books on what was and look ahead to what can be and hopefully what will be a new beginning.

Shortly after the Fall semester ended and during the holiday break, students and staff at PSU Hazleton were asked if they would make a New Year's resolution(s).

Do you plan to make a New Year's resolution? The quick responses:

Anthony Trezza - Read more
Heather Schlenker - Work out regularly
Shawn Perkiss - Gain 20 pounds of muscle.
Shakira Liang - Stop cursing
Jaime Hock - Maintain a 3.9 GPA
Michael Slodysko - Do better during the semester.

The longer comments:

Megan McGee, a junior from Milford, said she tries to make resolutions each year but none have really been successful. She hopes this year her resolution "to be successful" will work.

Jackie Jackowski, a sophomore from Jim Thorpe, said her resolution is to eat healthier and go to the gym more often. In the past, I did well for the first few months of the new year but eventually grew tired of my resolution and gave up.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION

OPTION A: Lose some weight
OPTION B: Buy a bigger basket

Cynthia Valenzuela, a sophomore from Las Vegas, NV said she would like to have her hair down to her waist, lose weight, become a billionaire. Since all are time consuming, I usually end up just giving up.

Meg Grebski, a senior from Pringle, said she did not make one this year and can't remember making any in the past. She said if she had made one it was probably to eat healthy and do better in school.

Jon Trosky, IST instructor, said becoming an expert with his new MAC, getting into the gym more often and stop eating carbs.

Ryan Aten from Student Affairs said he doesn't make resolutions nor did he remember ever making one. But he smiled and said one of his goals which he knows he will keep in 2013 is to head to Dick's Sporting Goods to buy stuff.

Here are some funny resolutions according to Happywink.org, a site which says it is the Society for the Confluence of World Festivals and Celebrations:

- Just for today, I will not sit in my living room all day in my nightgown. Instead, I will move my computer into the bedroom;
- I will do less laundry and use more deodorant.

- I will try to figure out why I really need nine e-mail addresses.
- I will think of another password other than "password."
- I will stop considering other people's feelings when they so obviously don't consider mine. (This means if that smelly person sits next to me again, I will tell them they stink!)

Now for the resolutions some people would like to make and most likely might keep!

- Spend more time watching TV/movies
- Chat more over the Internet/phone
- Read less.
- Gain weight, like at least 30 pounds.
- Stop exercising. Waste of time.
- Procrastinate more.
- Drink. Then, drink some more.
- Start being superstitious.
- Spend mess time at work.
- Stop bringing lunch from home. Eat out more often.
- Take up a new habit like smoking or gambling.
- Shop more, laugh a lot and cover all mirrors.

Things to ponder in 2013

Co-managing editor Amanda Gipson posted the above water commentary on Facebook over the holiday as something to share. Here are some other postings worth repeating at the start of the new year in the hope we can all get along a little bit better and make a difference in the future.

Someone who hates you normally hates you for one of three reasons. They either see you as a threat. They hate themselves. Or they want to be you.

New year, new advertising rates

The PSU Collegian will accept all advertising from the previous semester as well as new ads from interested people and businesses. The newspaper will publish until the week of April 15. New rates will take effect as of the Jan. 22 edition.

A full page ad will be $100 for one week or $500 for the entire semester (approximately 12 weeks.) A one half page ad (either vertical or horizontal) is $50 for one week or $250 for the entire semester.

A full one column vertical ad will be $30 a week or $200 for the semester. A two-column by one-third page ad is the same price. (measurements are approximate but will be about 1.75 by 9-inches for the one column and 2 by 3.65 inches for the two column.)

A two-column ad approximate 4 by 5-inches, will be $40 a week or $225 for the semester. Finally, a one-column small ad that measures approximately 2 by 1.75-inches will be $20 a week or $150 for the semester.

The PSU Collegian can design the ad at no cost and a photo or art may also be included in the ad. However, the photo or art must be high resolution (200 dpi) and it will be printed in black and white.
